this historic book may have numerous typos and missing text purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher not indexed not illustrated 1852 edition excerpt has no cause for a negative cause is really no cause therefore to say concerning any existence it has no cause but a negative one is really denying that it has any cause this therefore makes sin to exist without a cause or reason of its existence rather than of its non existence if the world has only a negative cause of its existence then there is no cause of its existence and no reason can be given why it does exist moreover this notion of a negative cause of moral evil supposes some positive cause by which sin would come into existence a cause of sufficient force and positive energy to produce this effect unless the operation of it be counteracted by god by preventing the existence of it by a positive energy and therefore it has actual existence as an effect of this cause by the determination of god not to hinder it if an effect will certainly take place upon a mere permission or not preventing it it is necessarily supposed there is a cause sufficient to produce this effect if not counteracted and it must be now asked what is this cause does it exist in god or in the creature if in the creature from whence is the origin of this positive cause is its origin in itself or in the creature or must we go back to the first cause if either of the former be admitted then we are again involved in the absurdity of sin being the cause of itself or of a cause and effect existing independent of the first cause 3 even this supposition that god is only the negative cause of moral evil were it consistent and did not leave sin really without any cause yet relieves no difficulty respecting the existence of sin it will be asked why god suffered sin to exist when he could have prevented it if we could account for
