this book explores the formations and configurations of british colonial discourse on india through a reading of prose narratives of the 1600 1920 period arguing that colonial discourse often relied on aesthetic devices in order to describe and assert a degree of narrative control over indian landscape pramod nayar demonstrates how aesthetics furnished a vocabulary and representational modes for the british to construct particular images of india looking specifically at the aesthetic modes of the marvellous the monstrous the sublime the picturesque and the luxuriant nayar marks the shift in the rhetoric from the exploration narratives from the age of mercantile exploration to that of the shikar memoirs of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century s extreme exotic english writing and india provides an important new study of colonial aesthetics even as it extends current scholarship on the modes of early british representations of new lands and cultures working within a global frame the routledge companion to postcolonial and decolonial literature considers postcolonial and decolonial literary works across multiple genres languages and both regional and transnational networks the companion extends beyond the entrenched hegemony of the postcolonial or anglophone novel to explore other literary formations and vernacular exchanges it foregrounds questions of language and circulation by emphasizing translation vernacularity and world literature this text expands the linguistic regional and critical foci of the emergent field of decolonial studies pushing against the normative currents of postcolonial literary studies and offers a critical consideration of both the volume prioritizes new literatures and critical theories of diasporas borderlands detentions and forced migrations in the face of environmental catastrophe and political authoritarianism reframing postcolonial decolonial literary studies through an emphasis on multilingual literatures this will be a crucial resource for undergraduate and graduate students of postcolonial and decolonial studies until the lives and issues of african women arrived on the agenda of postcolonial writers african women who continued their lives under double colonization by patriarchy and dominant powers did not have much standing in literary works and in the world of literature postcolonial african women have often been represented as weak subaltern and speechless by western writers and have even been underrepresented by some postcolonial writers this book shows how the african woman who is usually represented in clichéd and stereotyped forms is depicted a versatile way in ngugi and adichie s novels postcolonial shakespeare is an exciting step forward in the dialogue between postcolonial studies and shakespearean criticism this unique volume features original work by some of the leading critics within the growing field of shakespeare studies and is the most authoritative collection on this topic to date this study explores the colonial and racial discourses emerging in early modern britain how the shakespearean text later became a colonial battlefield how shakespeare circulates in our post and neo colonial world today this collection of new essays traces the connections between early modern and contemporary vocabularies of colonization race and nationhood in recent years scholars of international relations have increasingly turned their attention to the question of how to decolonize knowledge while emerging debates and initiatives mark a critical step toward exposing the discipline's embedded power structures there remains a striking lack of systematic empirical research into how these asymmetries are reproduced and experienced within the global south itself this book explores the coloniality of power and knowledge in pakistan through an examination of pakistani international relations it not only unveils the hegemonic processes embedded within the western capitalist structures of knowledge production but also explores how the eurocentrism of international relations in pakistan is sustained and maintained through a coloniality of knowledge and power which is designed to promote western epistemologies and emulate western standards this book consequently provides a view of epistemic oppression from below in doing so it is an initial attempt to explore how the process of decolonization can begin to address the issues embedded in the coloniality of knowledge demonstrated through an exploration of the international relations discipline in pakistan
