the stakes for george gordon meade could not have been higher after his stunning victory at gettysburg in july of 1863 the union commander spent the following months trying to bring the army of northern virginia to battle once more and finish the job the confederate army robbed of much of its offensive strength nevertheless parried meade s moves time after time although the armies remained in constant contact during those long months of cavalry clashes quick maneuvers and sudden skirmishes lee continued to frustrate meade s efforts meanwhile in washington d c meade s political enemies launched an all out assault against his reputation and generalship even the very credibility of his victory at gettysburg came under assault pressure mounted for the army commander to score a decisive victory and prove himself once more smaller victories like those at bristoe station and rappahannock station did little to quell the growing clamor particularly because out west in chattanooga another union general ulysses s grant was once again reversing federal misfortunes meade needed a comparable victory in the east and so on thanksgiving day 1863 the army of the potomac rumbled into motion once more intent on trying again to bring about the great battle that would end the war the great battle never fought the mine run campaign november 26 december 2 1863 recounts the final chapter of the forgotten fall of 1863 when george gordon meade made one final attempt to save the union and in doing so save himself

it is estimated that around 50 000 brigade lads served in the first world war during which many honors and distinctions were awarded the brigade contributed two service battalions of the king s royal rifle corps whose members were comprised entirely of past and present members of the church lads brigade these were known as pals battalions the story of the battalion centers around the experiences of eight men who served and some who died in the battles of the somme arras and the lys in the latter half of the nineteenth century influential christians were worried about the poor spiritual and physical development of young people it was at that time that brigade groups began to spring up all over the uk walter mallock gee who was secretary of the junior branch of the church of england temperance society and a volunteer army officer founded the church lads brigade in 1891 by 1908 the membership of the brigade stood at about 70 000 in 1 300 companies when the call to arms came from field marshal horatio herbert kitchener in 1914 thousands of britain s youth flocked to join the armed forces members of the church lads brigade joined up in their droves at recruiting stations all over great britain two battalions were formed entirely from serving and ex members of the church lad s brigade the 16th service battalion and later the 19th service battalion both sponsored by the church lads brigade became known as the churchmen s battalion in 1914 no one could have imagined the horrendous stories that would unfold from the bloody massacre at so many notorious battles across belgium and the fields of flanders ypres passchendale somme arras lys and the brutal decimation of the battalion during the hell of the fighting at high wood no one could have imagined the discomfort and disease brought on by living in a trench full of water for days on end or over the top through acres of knee high mud more than 24 of the church lads brigade were awarded a victoria cross for their bravery but by 1918 many of those gallant young lads would not return home this is their story the author and the publishers acknowledge that some material in this title has been taken from the website 1914 1918 net without permission or acknowledgement and are grateful to the copyright holder chris baker for granting this permission retrospectively this book is a collection of essays on neglected aspects of the great war it begins by asking what exactly was so great about it before turning to individual studies of various aspects of the war these fall broadly into two categories firstly personal micro narratives that deal directly with the experience of war often derived from contemporary interest in diaries and oral histories presenting both a close up view of the viscosity and the tedium and powerlessness of personal situations these same narratives also address the effects of the war on hitherto under regarded groups such as children and animals secondly the authors look at the impact of the course of the war on theatres often left out in reflections on the main european combatants and therefore not part of the regular iconography of the trenches in places such as denmark canada india the levant greece and east africa
