in the past twenty years the study of urban politics has shifted from a predominant concern with political culture and ethos to a preoccupation with political economy particularly that of urban development urban scholars have come to recognize that cities are shaped by forces beyond their boundaries from that focus have emerged the views that cities are clearly engaged in economic competition that market processes are shaped by national policy decisions sometimes intentionally and sometimes inadvertently and that the costs and benefits of economic growth are unevenly distributed but what else needs to be said about the policies and politics of urban development to supplement prevailing theories the politics of urban development argues that the role of local actors in making development decisions merits closer study whatever the structural constraints politics still matters collectively the essays provide ample evidence that local government officials and other community actors do not simply follow the imperatives that derive from the national political economy they are able to assert a significant degree of influence over the shared destiny of an urban population the impact of the collection is to heighten awareness of local political

be the driving force behind your company's growth. Robert H. Bloom has discovered that every enterprise has at least one strategic asset, one existing strength that can form the foundation for future growth. He calls this an inside advantage. This strength usually lies unrecognized in an activity the business is currently performing or in a concept or an idea that the business already owns. Finding this hidden potential and becoming well known for it will grow the business. This strategy reflects Bloom's 45 years of experience in growing businesses and brands of every size and type, including famous companies such as Southwest Airlines, Target, McDonald's, Friday's, Zales, Nestlé, and L'Oréal, as well as not so famous B2B firms, not-for-profit organizations, and start-ups. Now, through his growth discovery process, he is making his strategy available to all people who know their craft but don't know how to craft a growth strategy. Bloom's process is a plain language path of discovery with only four steps. Whether you are a business leader, a manager, or an entrepreneur, this growth discovery process will enable you to gain a profound insight into the core values of your enterprise. It will guide you to a clear understanding of who your customers are and what your special offerings to those customers should be. Finally, the process will stimulate a host of ideas. What Bloom calls imaginative acts for highlighting your inside advantage and making it well known to current and prospective customers. Doing what you're good at and doing it better than anyone else will create growth. The inside advantage will help you capture that magic moment when customers will select your product or service over those of your competitors.
