how us government and media collaborated in their dissemination of cold war propaganda the radio eye cinema in the north atlantic 1958 1988 examines the way in which media experiments in quebec newfoundland the faroe islands and the irish gaelic speaking communities of ireland use film video and television to advocate for marginalized communities and often for smaller languages the radio eye is not however a set of isolated case studies author jerry white illustrates the degree to which these experiments are interconnected sometimes implicitly but more often quite explicitly media makers in the north atlantic during the period 1958 1988 were very aware of each other's cultures and aspirations and by structuring the book in two interlocking parts white illustrates the degree to which a common project emerged during those three decades the book is bound together by white's belief that these experiments are following in the idealism of soviet silent filmmaker dziga vertov who wrote about his notion of the radio eye white also puts these experiments in the context of work by the cuban filmmaker and theorist julio garcía espinosa and his notion of imperfect cinema jürgen habermas and his notions of the public sphere and Édouard glissant's ideas about créolité as the defining aspect of modern culture this is a genuinely internationalist moment and these experiments are in conversation with a wide array of thought across a number of languages this book brings together in an easy to use format the essential facts of the civil war its purpose is to be quickly and precisely informative rather than comprehensive it provides concise overviews of individual topics such as the battles armies and commanders of both sides a chronology of the events of the war a glossary of terms an alphabetical listing of ships from both navies and basic biographical information on all commanders book jacket
